

SRP 2021 on Beanstack: Reading Colors Your World Cheat Sheet

General Instructions/Tips for GRRL:

(your local library decides how prizes are awarded)

- SRP runs June 7 to August 7. Preregistration on Beanstack opens June 1, but logging begins June 7.
- This year kids & teens may use paper or Beanstack (griver.beanstack.org OR Beanstack Tracker app)
- Give each family the age-appropriate paper logs AND a Beanstack stuffer as you explain how the program works.
- Mention that if they use Beanstack, they do NOT need to return the paper logs, but they can keep taking paper logs if they like the visual.
 - *They can even print their own logs if they wish! (on griver.org or in Beanstack)
- Make a habit of logging into Beanstack with your staff account each day you work. (See your supervisor if you do not have an account.)

Baby/Toddler (ages 0-3)

What you need to know:

The reading record and Beanstack challenge mirror each other! (Very similar to 2020)

The paper log has five sections: Talk, Write, Sing, Play and Read. Each section lists four activities. They need to complete at least two activities in each section to complete the program.

Beanstack has five “activity badges” with four activities listed for each one (same ones as paper log). Two activities in each section need to be completed to earn the badge. All five badges completes the challenge, just like the paper log.

*(If they finish their log ie. “complete the challenge” and want to do more, they can keep doing the other activities listed. Also, offer the Early Literacy Calendar and invite them to join 1000 Books Before Kindergarten!)

Kids (ages 4-12)

What you need to know:

Kids can read or do activities on the paper log or in Beanstack.

On the paper log, they color in a segment for each 20 minutes of reading/listening OR activity they do. (There are 15 segments on each paper log, similar to the clocks we used to have.)

They can turn in their paper log when completed and take another one to keep going. Each log enters them in your prize drawing.

In Beanstack, each time they log 20 minutes OR do one of the “repeatable” activities (same ones as on paper log) they get a “point,” which is just like a segment of coloring.

After completing 15 “points” they earn a “badge,” which is equivalent to completing a paper log.

Each “badge” enters them into the prize drawing, just like turning in a paper log. [Their “reward” is called Prize Drawing, which states, “You are entered into a prize drawing! Your library will contact you if you win. Keep reading for more chances to win.”]

(Badges go up to 120 points, which = 8 paper logs. Beyond that, they may continue logging, although they won't see additional badges.)

Teens (ages 11-18)

What you need to know:

Note that 11's and 12's can choose Kids or Teen (on paper OR in Beanstack)

On the paper log, they shade in a segment for each 20 minutes of reading or activity completed. When the log (of 18 segments) is completed, they turn it in and take another one to keep entering drawings.

In Beanstack, they earn a “point” for each 20 minutes of reading or activity completed. After 18 points, they earn a badge, which enters them into a drawing, equivalent to the paper log.

(Badges go up to 198 points, which = 11 paper logs. Beyond that, they may continue logging, although they won't see additional badges.)

*For Kids and Teens, there is no “completing” the SRP. They are encouraged to keep reading/logging to enter prize drawings.
